STAFF

FAREWELL MRS. ELLISTON

It was a difficult decision — Love of Westie versus hate of harsh snowy New England winters. Our loss is the state of Florida's gain. English Department veteran Cassie Elliston accepted a teaching position in Port St. Lucie High School, well below the snow belt in the Sunshine State. The whole faculty of WRHS turned out at a party in June, 1990 to honor this popular English teacher. She's doing well down there, but it's clear that she misses Westie as much as Westie misses her.

HEADMASTER

Donald Pellegrini

To you, the graduating class of June 1991, we, the members of the administration, faculty, and staff of West Roxbury High School, offer our congratulations.

You graduate in a year that has seen some of the greatest political, economic, and social changes, both here at home and, more extensively, worldwide.

In ordinary times, our national problems of iniquitous bigotries, racial prejudices, and economic instabilities would present you an overwhelming challenge to test your ability to survive, do well, and contribute to the society of mankind. Yet, these are not ordinary times. Social and political boundaries have been decimated, changing the map of the world. Also, we are involved in a major conflict which will determine for many generations to come a world order of peace and freedom. Your challenge is service, service to your fellowman and your belief in peace, prosperity, freedom and fairness to all. Within the range of your own abilities, let each of you be responsible for all the good you are capable of doing to protect the integrity of mankind.

It has been our task at Westie to broaden, strengthen, and nurture your capabilities.

We know that this has been done through the diligence of a dedicated, intelligent, and resourceful faculty of teachers. Now, it is your time, with the help of God, to bestow upon others your benevolence.
